The Honorable James Kenney
Mayor of Philadelphia
City Hall, Office 215
Philadelphia, PA 19107

June 16, 2020

Dear Mayor Kenney:

A group of Philadelphians experiencing homelessness have made camp on the Parkway. This is a constitutionally-protected way to state grievances and to petition government, using the power of protest to make a collective public statement about the need for this city to properly address homelessness. We write as fellow citizens concerned about the health and social justice of our neighbors, and to urge against any action to break up the peaceful encampment. Instead, we hope the city will take this opportunity to demonstrate that our city and your administration are serious about finally putting our resources into policies that address the social factors undermining health and well-being.

Scattering the residents of the encampment to fend for themselves would be both a public health and humanitarian mistake. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has recommended against clearing encampments during the COVID-19 crisis if individual housing options are not available. People without a safe, sanitary place to live cannot protect themselves or others during this ongoing pandemic. Nor can we recommend or accept forcing people into a choice between homelessness and unsafe congregate stopgaps. COVID-19 makes it that much clearer that congregate shelters are unhealthy environments. And it hardly requires mention that using force to break up a peaceful protest is simply no longer acceptable to the people of this city.

We urge you instead to see this as an opportunity to show that Philadelphia’s leaders are hearing the calls for putting our resources and efforts into programs that actually meet the needs of our people. The residents of the encampment are demanding dignified treatment, and attention to their safety, and they are asserting the fundamental right we all share to have a place to live. The National Alliance to End Homelessness is urging immediate provision of private rooms with bathrooms for people who are at high risk for complications from the coronavirus, including people with diabetes, hypertension, chronic lung conditions, and people who are immune compromised — conditions we see at high rates among people who are homeless. Elderly people are also at high risk of COVID-19 complications, and among people who experience homelessness, 55 years of age is considered elderly. Safe, non-congregate housing should be found for everyone in need in this city. Furthermore, the city should commit that no one placed in hotels or other temporary expediencies, will be returned to homelessness. The city should commit that people who exit these facilities will be provided with placement in permanent housing and provided supports where necessary. Philadelphia should develop a clear plan for how it would accomplish this transformation.

We hope that working with the protesters in the encampment can be the first step in a continued dialogue and collective action among partners to ensure permanent, safe, affordable housing for all. We know our city can accomplish great things by working together, and what could be more important than ensuring we all have a home?
Sincerely,

Joe Amon, PhD MSPH
Clinical Professor, Community Health and Prevention
Dornsife School of Public Health
Drexel University

Jessica Amoroso, Esq.
Law & Policy Analyst
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Mary Ellen Balchunis, PhD

Scott Burris, JD
Professor & Director
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Mariana Chilton, PhD, MPH
Director, Center for Hunger-Free Communities
Drexel University

Adrienne R. Ghorashi, Esq.
Program Manager
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Toorjo Ghose, MSW, PhD
Associate Professor, Calvin Bland Faculty Fellow, School of Social Policy & Practice
University of Pennsylvania

Ronda B. Goldfein, Esq.
AIDS Law Project of Pennsylvania

Alex Hess, JD
Legal Researcher
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Jonathan Larsen, JD, MPP
Consultant
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Jennifer J. Lee
Clinical Associate Professor of Law
Sheller Center for Social Justice
Temple University Beasley School of Law

Stephen Metraux, PhD
Director & Associate Professor, Center for Community Research & Service
Biden School of Public Policy & Administration
University of Delaware

Katie Moran-McCabe, JD
Special Projects Manager
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Andre M. Perry
Fellow - Metropolitan Policy Program
Brookings Institute

Elizabeth Platt, JD/MA
Director, Policy Research Technology Program
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Akira Drake Rodriguez
Weitzman School of Design, Department of City & Regional Planning
University of Pennsylvania

Sabrina Ruchelli, JD
Law and Policy Analyst
Center for Public Health Law Research, Temple University Beasley School of Law

Ayden Scheim
Assistant Professor, Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics
Dornsife School of Public Health
Drexel University

Stephanie Sena
Anti-Poverty Law Fellow and Law School Faculty
Villanova University Charles Widger School of Law

Jerry Stahler, PhD
Professor
Department of Geography and Urban Studies
Temple University

Eric Tars
Legal Director
National Law Center on Homelessness & Poverty
Representative Greg Vitali
166th District
Pennsylvania House of Representatives

Celeste Winston
Assistant Professor, Department of Geography and Urban Studies
Temple University